CANARY OR MOTHER?

A little boy had a canary bird which he loved very much. His mother was taken ill, and the singing of the bird gave her great annoyance. The boy was told by the mother that his little bird gave her pain by its singing. He went at once and gave the bird away to his cousin, and then came home and told his mother that the canary would not disturb her any more, for he had given it to his cousin.

"But did you not love it very much?" said the mother to him. "How could you part with it?"

"It is true, I loved the bird, Mother," he replied, "but I love you much more. I could not really love anything that gave you pain."

We must love God as this boy loved his mother, more than we love anything else; and also everything that grieves Him we must give up, however much we may like it.
